

Cunard puts 2022 voyages on sale including Queen Mary 2's Transatlantic Crossings and new voyages to Alaska

November 17, 2020

SOUTHAMPTON, England, Nov. 17, 2020 /PRNewswire/ --

Cunard's 2022 voyage schedule for Queen Mary 2, Queen Victoria and Queen Elizabeth is now on sale.

More than 35 countries feature in the 162 newly launched itineraries, covering north of the Arctic Circle to the Mediterranean and from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic Ocean, via the Panama Canal.

Highlights include Queen Elizabeth returning to Alaska with seven and 10 night voyages, departing from and returning to Vancouver, visiting Glacier Bay, Haines, Hubbard Glacier, Skagway, Juneau, Sitka, Ketchikan and Victoria. Ten night Alaska voyages start at $1599 per person.

The series of Alaskan voyages will be joined by a special headliner on each including leading mountaineers Kenton Cool and Peter Hilary and polar scientist turned explorer Felicity Aston.

From Alaska, Queen Elizabeth will journey through the Panama Canal, across to the Mediterranean, where she will embark on a series of seven and 14 night fly-cruises, departing from Barcelona.

Highlights on Queen Mary 2 include a seven night Independence Day Celebration, including an overnight call to Boston and visits to Bar Harbor and Halifax, and her transatlantic crossings with 19 new voyages sailing between New York and Southampton now on sale.

Cunard president, Simon Palethorpe said:

"There is lots for our guests to look forward to on our new voyages for 2022 which include journeys through the Panama Canal and to the Caribbean, a return to Alaska and Queen Mary 2's transatlantic crossings.

"We are experiencing high demand for 2021, so we know how much our guests are anticipating traveling again on Cunard's iconic ships, and we are delighted to be offering an extended range of voyages through to the end of 2022, all accompanied by early booking offers."
